

Community Communications

Student Leader Education and Development
Thursday, August 14
Austin Korynta (he/him/his)

What are Community Communications, and why do we do them?

Community Communications are various methods of communicating out information to residents that help them to find resources, community engagement, and other information happening on campus. We provide this information so that students can be resourceful and well-informed on what's going on around campus and how to meet Learning Outcomes of the Tommie Advantages.

Some examples of Community Communications include:

- Emails
- Bulletin Boards
- GroupMe Messages

How do I execute Community Communications?

Your supervisor will provide you with content to communicate out with steps on how to publicize the information. This might include an email template, a bulletin board to staple up in your community, or a GroupMe message to spark engagement in your group chats.

Formatting for Delivery: Bulletin Boards

Making content that is desirable to read is important so that residents are actually engaging with the content that we are communicating.

While bulletin boards are created by the CD team and your only job is to put them up, it can still be helpful to organize the content in a way that is easy on the eyes.

Your bulletin board will need:

- A background in black, white, or purple
 - Replaced when faded, at least once this year in J-Term
- A consistent border that is secured around the entire perimeter of the board
- All materials placed evenly in order, with staples in all four corners
 - Any missing materials should be reported and replaced immediately!

Formatting for Delivery: GroupMe & Emails

Good news, we give you all the content for GroupMe and Email messages too!

GroupMe

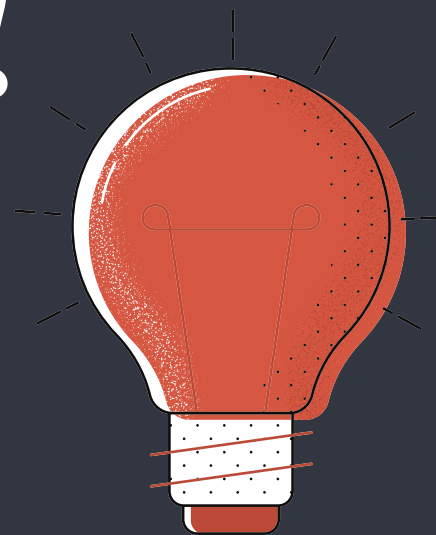

- It is also important to have regular communication in your GroupMe chats with your residents to make them more familiar with how this information might come up and to encourage community dialogue.
- We will give you content to share, AND you have a responsibility to use this space to develop community and interactions. Make sure you're reading messages and engaging with residents here!

Email

- We will provide email templates with highlighted areas for you to personalize content with your name, community, and other customizable opportunities. Put yourself into it, be authentically you!

Examples

- Introductory
Email
- Introductory
GroupMe
- Bulletin
Board Example on next slide!

What are Values?

Values are tenets of our lives that we identify as important to our individual person in our lives. Following our personal values assists us in being able to find our true selves, and to generate our sense of wellbeing and happiness. Through identifying our individual values, we can find a life that aligns with our true selves.

LET'S TALK VALUES!

Davis, T. (2018, July 12) 39 Core Values -- and How to Live By Them. Psychology Today. www.psychologytoday.com

CONSIDER THIS

HOW DO I LIVE OUT MY VALUES?

Consider 3 or 5 of your most important values. Write these down, and now consider three or more actions that exemplify you living out these values for yourself.

HOW AM I NOT LIVING OUT MY VALUES?

Consider one action that doesn't align with these values. What could you do differently next time? Are my actions not aligned with my values, or have my values changed?

Identifying Our Values

Consider the list of values on this page, and identify any of the values that YOU hold. Remember, this is a personal list, and YOU are the only one who can identify YOUR values.

Note: This is not an exhaustive list! If you have a value that is not listed, consider that and know that it is a completely valid value to you.

- | | | |
|-----------------|---------------|---------------------|
| • Authenticity | • Friendships | • Openness |
| • Adventure | • Fun | • Optimism |
| • Balance | • Generosity | • Recognition |
| • Bravery | • Growth | • Respect |
| • Compassion | • Honesty | • Responsibility |
| • Challenge | • Integrity | • Security |
| • Citizenship | • Justice | • Self-Respect |
| • Community | • Kindness | • Social Connection |
| • Creativity | • Knowledge | • Spirituality |
| • Curiosity | • Leadership | • Stability |
| • Determination | • Learning | • Status |
| • Fairness | • Love | • Wealth |
| • Freedom | • Loyalty | |

THAT'S ONLY good even!

I've learned so much in the last month. From our classes to the people we've come to engage with, we've come to have a better understanding of ourselves and the world around us.

Changing values is an important part of our growth as individuals. While it is important to stay true to ourselves and to live out our values, it is important (and healthy) to have changing minds after receiving new information.

to explore, continue to have confidence in those that challenge your values, and be willing to challenge your thinking.

MY VALUES HAVE CHANGED, NOW WHAT?

Remember

We are called to be dynamic individuals who continue to learn and explore the world around us.

Be true to yourself and your values, and keep your mind open to the changes that you will continue to go through throughout your life and learning processes!

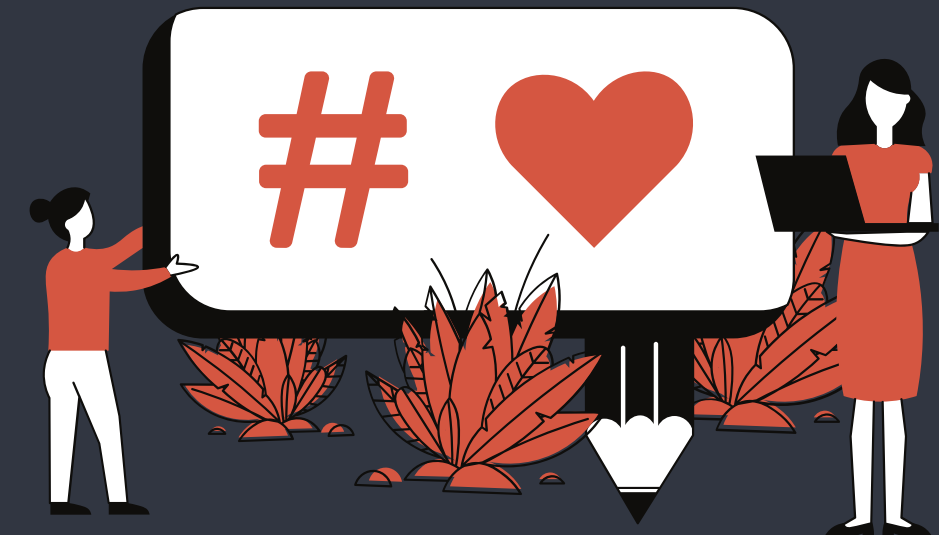

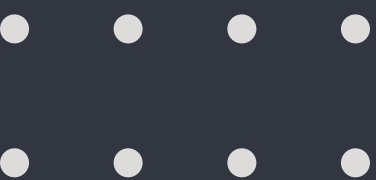

Importance of Time

The CD team and Erica started preparing this year's Community Communications back in late March. Everything we do is on a timeline with specific information that we put out at certain times given institutional context and history (i.e. we generally know that more roommate conflicts happen in October/November than they do in September).

Some content needs to be out to give folks ample time to read it before events might occur, others may be only posted for a short while, or are in collaboration with campus partners.

TLDR: Post all communication on time!!!

Thanks team! Any questions?

